of regions we may never have seen or of the very territories where we live.

The following 12 Georgia road maps show the progress we've made in developing our State Highway System, since the formation in 1919 of the State Highway Department, and now known as the Department of Transportation.

Not only has the highway system grown from 4,800 miles of abysmally, muddy roads in 1920 to 18,294 miles of smooth highways in 1983, but the maps themselves are more sophisticated and offer the curious-minded armchair voyager a mine of precious
