Augusta Welcome Center reopening Tuesday after repairs

WHAT: The Augusta Welcome Center should reopen Tuesday morning after weekend repairs to a damaged water line. Georgia DOT will soon barricade the entrance and setup a message board off Interstate 20 to alert the traveling public about the closure.

Repair work includes replacing the water line between the facility and the damaged site. This requires concrete sawing in the parking area and a pour back after the pipe is fixed.

WHEN: The Welcome Center is currently closed off to the public and will remain that way until Tuesday, August 2.
