SR 133 Traffic Shifting Wednesday from Brooks County to Berlin

State Route 133 traffic will move Wednesday morning to newly-constructed lanes from north of the intersection of SR 333 in Brooks County to south of Southerland Avenue in Berlin, Colquitt County.

The traffic shift is necessary to allow contractor The Scruggs Co. of Hahira to reconstruct the old lanes. Drivers should be prepared for a change in the traffic pattern and are asked to slow down in the construction zone.

Georgia DOT is widening/reconstructing SR 133 by sections between Valdosta and Albany. This particular section of SR 133 is 9.63 miles long, from Old Quitman Adel Road in Brooks County to Old Berlin Road in Colquitt County. The construction cost is $35 million. Work began about 12 months ago and the completion date is April 30, 2018.

Two sections have been completed and three others have been let or are under construction. The projects for the remaining sections of SR 133 are in the planning stages.
